Summary:

This piece of research explores the Quranic objectives in the Chapter of Qāf, depending on the deductive and inductive methods. Its significance lies in the merit of this chapter and its great position among the Quranic chapters, and yet the studies that dealt with the Quranic objectives did not examine it adequately despite its being instrumental in understanding and meditating on the Qur'an.

The research aims to extract the Quranic objectives from the chapter of Qāf, highlight the key issues that it tackles and find out why the Prophet (Peace be upon him) used to recite it at his major assemblies.

This research includes an introduction, three sections, and a conclusion. The first section defines the study of the Quranic objectives and clarifies its importance. As for the second section, it presents an introduction to the chapter of Qāf which sheds light on what helps to draw the Quranic objectives. The third section (which is also the crux of the research) discusses the general meaning of the chapter in question, together with its supporting evidence, its sub-themes and the meditative consideration of its verses.

Main Findings:

The research concludes that the chapter of Qāf deals with several primary issues related to the Islamic faith, confirming certain religious fundamentals, including belief in Allah (Exalted be He), His angels, His sacred books, His prophets, the Doomsday, and predestination and gives a complete picture of man's life. That's why the Prophet (Peace be upon him) was always keen on reciting it on formal occasions.

Primary Recommendations:

- Special attention should be given to the chapter of Qāf in terms of recitation and meditation.
- It should be recited during the Friday Sermon and the Eid prayer to revive the Prophet's established tradition.
- The Quranic objectives of the various chapters should be studied, particularly those chapters which the Prophet (Peace be upon Him) recited regularly.

Key Words: Quranic objectives- meditative consideration-interpretation –the chapter of Qāf- the Meccan chapters-al-mufasssal.

Summary:

This research deals with dialogue in terms of its definition and the features of the Qur'anic dialogue.

Then it examines four models of the dialogues of the prophets (Peace be upon them) with their children, from a rhetorical perspective, coupled with the educative benefits that could be drawn from them. This piece of research uses the descriptive and deductive approaches.

The research aims to extract the rhetorical secrets as well as some educative benefits from those dialogues.

Main Findings:

1. Dialogue is not only a distinguishing characteristic of human society, but it is also present in the speech of Allah (Exalted be He) with the angels, Satan himself (May Allah curse him) and all other creatures.

Recommendations of the Study:

1. More emphasis should be placed on the extraction of the secrets and the rhetorical connotations in the Noble Qur'an with the view to highlighting the magnificence and loftiness of the Qur'anic expressions.
2. The rhetoric Qur'anic secrets should not be concluded in a sophisticated manner, as the Noble Qur'an is not in need of sophistication or mannersism; rather, it is rich in its concise expressions and inimitable meanings.

Keywords: Dialogue, Quran, Prophets, Children, Eloquence, Style.

Compulsory Question in the Qur'anic Dialogue: a Thorough Applied study

Qur'anic Sciences, the College of the Noble Qur'an, the Islamic University of Madinah

Summary:

This research deals with the meaning of the term "compulsory question" in the Noble Qur'an, from two aspects:

The first detailed aspect is based on the linguistic and technical definition of the term in question, its methods and advantages.

The second applied aspect explores twenty instances of compulsory question according to the views of the scholars concerned.

The research is of paramount importance, especially because the researchers of the Science of Tafsir are badly in need of editing all the related terms. As far as I know, no one discussed this term in detail neither in the Qur'anic sciences, the Principles of Tafsir nor rhetoric. That's why I like to collect all that was written about it in this very study.

Findings of the Study:

- Compulsory question is used by a group of exegetes, from the time of Imam Al-Tabari until now.
- Compulsory question is confutative, and thus more attention should be focused on it with respect to polemics.
- It is noticeable that this method is frequently used in the verses of the chapter of Al-An'ām to establish the sound Islamic faith.
- The places studied number 18.

Key words: question, compulsion, Qur'anic dialogue.

Summary:

This research clarifies how the Qur'anic chapter demonstrates the Greatness of Allah (Exalted be He) through His actions and the requirements of devotion that devoted worshippers must fulfill. It also shows how the Qur'anic chapter inculcates Allah's Greatness in the minds of His devoted worshippers. Each chapter has its own style of highlighting Greatness and the requisites of devotion.

This research deals with the meaning of glorification, the related close terms, the concept of devotion and its requirements, the meaning of Allah's Name "the Magnificent" and the attribute "Greatness", and the impact of the Qur'anic chapter on enhanced faith in divine Greatness. It also discusses the aims and objectives of the chapter of Al-Haqqah, how Allah's Name "the Magnificent" and His Attribute "Greatness" are portrayed in the same chapter and the techniques it uses to confirm divine Greatness and the requirements of devotion.

Main Findings:

1- Each of the Qur'anic chapters has its own style of exalting Allah and explaining the requirements of devotion, including stories, parables, moral lessons, dialogues, cosmic wonders, the Best Names of Allah (Exalted be He), His Supreme Attributes, divine normative precedents, and so on.

2- There is significant consistency between the techniques that each Qur'anic chapter uses to confirm divine Greatness and the requisites of devotion in a way that illuminates minds and nourishes hearts with awe and reverence.

Primary Recommendations:

A scientific study should be conducted on how the Noble Qur'an handles glorification, its requirements, and its recompense at the level of each chapter.

Key words: basing - chapter - Greatness - devotion.
